same horse. It has got a broad back as Tom indicated. You can throw one more saddle on it and it can carry a few more things on down to victory and to the Governor's Office where it will be joyfully signed. So with that, I urge my colleagues to kill this proposal and cut us into the act so we can be part of these grand schemes and deals.

PRESIDENT: Senator Haberman, for what purpose do you ask recognition?

SENATOR HABERMAN: A point of order, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT: State your point.

SENATOR HABERMAN: Mr. President, I would be glad to get in touch with the Union Pacific and get Senator Newell one of those cabooses so he could have a caboose for his train. Thank you.

PRESIDENT: The Chair recognizes Senator Vard Johnson.

SENATOR V. JOHNSON: I call the question.

PRESIDENT: We have not had any negative ones yet. Next...I will not call the question at the present time. Senator Vickers. Mr. Speaker.

SPEAKER NICHOL: Mr. President, there might not be any other side so unless somebody objects I don't know that it is necessary to search for additional speakers.

SENATOR VICKERS: I object, Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT: I discreetly choose to recognize Senator Vickers.

SENATOR VICKERS: Well, Mr. President, and members, for those of you that feel like you were left out on some magical deal...

PRESIDENT: Order in the Chamber please. (Gavel.) Senator Vickers.
